BRIDGE WORK IS BEING PUSHED - This shot of the Route 93 bridge over the river was taken from the Methuen end of the bridge, and shows overtime work on Saturday, as preparations are rushed for finished grading at the end of the structure. The contractor has a completion date this fall, when the bridge and the access ways are supposed to be completed. The deck is installed on bridge and much of the side railings are now installed, although some work remains on the structure, such as installation of lights. (Staff Photo)

2 Major Sections Of Rt. 93 May Delay Opening From Rt. 128 North

Two major construction jobs stand in the way of opening Route 93 from Route 128 to Haverhill st. in Methuen.

One, an access to the bridge itself, probably will be finished this fall.

But the second - formally known as the Wilmington-Tewksbury-Andover section - looks like almost an impossibility. First, the contractor has an August, 1960 completion date; and, secondly, there's no way to speed up the work except through polite requests.

A spokesman for the State Department of Public Works told the TOWNSMAN this week that there is no likelihood that extra payments would be authorized for a speed-up.

This device was used in the downtown Boston area, but the howl of protest could be heard all over the state. On that occasion, the contractor received a substantial sum to speed up his work and finish the job before it was due. The DPW spokesman indicated that the clamor raised by adopting this device was so great that it would outweigh any benefits that might be gained from the speed-up.

The only possibility, it was explained, is that the contractor may agree to open up one side of the divided highway ahead of completion time - but this is entirely a voluntary act.

Some reports have indicated that the contractor, himself, is seeking a completion date about Christmas-time of this year. But this could not be confirmed this week.

Ribbon Of Hottop

Apart from these two sections, Route 93 is practically complete to Route 128.

The sections in Andover, from the river to Dascomb rd., are solid ribbons of hottop - and the long stretch beyond the Wilmington section - are also about completed.

Driving time on the entire highway, from New Hampshire to Medford, has been estimated at 30-32 minutes by the DPW.

And it looks like a firm prediction.

Based on driving time over finished portions of the highway at this time, it probably will be no (Continued on Page Six)

Highest Enrollment At Phillips Acad.

Classes began at Phillips Academy today to begin the 182nd academic year. John M. Kemper greeted the entire student body last evening and announced that school opened with a record enrollment of 820 students, 30 students more than last year's previous record. Included in the student body are 57 day students from Andover and the surrounding areas. Twenty three of these are coming to Andover for the first time this

$1,500 Goal Set In Boosters' Club Drive

Plans for the annual Booster's Club membership drive were made at a meeting Monday night of the Club.

A "dry run", during which leaflets describing the Club's activities will be distributed next Monday evening from house-to-house. And the following Monday, the town-wide solicitation will begin. Youngsters from the high school will work the first three nights of that week - Sept. 28-29-30 - from 5:30 to 7:30.

According to Chairman Charles O. McCullom, the goal this year is $1,500. Realization of that amount would enable the Boosters to boost the number of scholar-McKenney cir. residents broke some bad news to the Selectmen Monday night, reporting that the state had promised way last spring to consider designing an access from the Circle into Andover. None appears on the proposed plans for the Route 110 interchange at North Main st., however.

This is the same request made of the state more recently by the town.

Joseph Toro, speaking for a group of residents, recalled that they presented many reasons to the state for providing some sort of direct access to the town from the Circle. The answer came from the chief engineer of the DPW, who promised to have the design engineers consider it when drawing

Celtics-Lakers Game Benefits Olympics

Saturday, Oct. 10, at 8 p.m., the World Champion Boston Celtics basketball team will play the team they beat for the championship last year, the Minneapolis Lakers, at the Phillips Academy Gym.

The game will be played for the benefit of the recently established Merrimack Valley Sports and Olympic Fund. Hoop fans of the area will thus have an opportunity not only to see the world champs in action, but the added chance to back the drive to

Doyle Builds Own Gliders, Considers Sport "Safe" Now

Jim Doyle has wanted to fly a glider ever since 1931 - and now he has.

So enthused is the Reservation rd. resident that he built his first, single-seater and now has a two-seater under construction. That one'll be ready next spring, Jim says, after some 300 work hours have gone into its construction.

"Please, call it a sail plane", Jim requested, "and soaring, not gliding".

For as he explained it, the sail plane of today bears little resemblance to what most people think of as a glider - a war-time plane without power, designed to be towed over a specific area and glide to a landing. "Why, I wouldn't even go up in one of those troop-carrying coffins", Jim emphasized, as he pointed out that sail planes have now been engineered for actual soaring, and for safety, too.

From A Kit...

Take Doyle's first sail plane, for example.

He bought the kit - with all the parts - from the Schweizer

UNITED FUND KICKOFF - Several Andover people attended the United Fund kickoff dinner in Lawrence Monday night. Seated here are Harold Rutter Jr., Stafford A. Lindsay and Mrs. Lindsay, William Rhoads, Mrs. Pauline Field and Miss Irene McCarthy, executive secretary of the Red Cross Chapter.

MCKENNEY CIRCLE RESIDENTS ALARMED

the plans. The failure of such a road to appear on the plans raised grave doubt Monday that the state intends to do anything about it. As shown on tentative plans, now up for Bureau of Roads approval, the Circle is isolated from the town completely. Vehicular and pedestrian traffic would have to exit into Lawrence, then wend its way back into Andover.

The residents and the town have argued that this is not practical in any way - resulting in school bus transportation problems, delayed emergency service into the area by police and fire departments, and dangerous conditions for the youngsters who walk to school. They would have to walk through the interchange area, it was pointed out, thus making their passage even more dangerous than it might normally be on a busy main street.

Town Manager Thomas E. Duff told the residents that he has written to the state asking consideration of the McKenney circle, and also that of High Plain rd., which is deadended on the plans.

Duff said he thought the engineers were well aware of the McKenney circle problem, which was pointed out when they appeared before the Selectmen some weeks ago to outline the total Route 110 plan for Andover.

One proposal outlined for them was to build a road from McKenney circle to Juliette st., which then would give the residents access to the town via Corbett st.

Duff told the residents that he has also requested a public hearing for the town - even though the state said it had held the formal hearing many months ago in Lowell. At that time, he believes, residents would have the chance to present all their arguments for an access road and to query the engineers about land takings and other data that now is the subject of many rumors.

It was apparent Monday that many stories concerning the new highway are making the rounds in the general area. Home owners are concerned, it was brought out Monday, about taking care of their homes properly. They feel there may be little value in making major repairs if the state is going to take the property - but hesitate to put off the repairs if there is to be no land taking.

The Selectmen promised to let the residents know as soon as possible after a reply is received from the state - and it was also agreed that the agency would be queried if no answer is forthcoming by tomorrow.

HIGHWAY OPENING MAY BE DELAYED

more than a 15-minute drive from the Merrimack River to Route 128.

It's possible, however, that construction of the highway into two lanes each way over the River may slow down traffic flow slightly. The DPW said the bridge - totaling four lanes - was purposely designed that way because it was believed that the heaviest traffic flow would occur in the areas closer to Boston. Thus the highway narrows as it gets into Andover, and contracts again as it passes over the River. The sections in Methuen will also be two-lanes each way, the spokesman explained.

Because of traffic flow, the DPW spokesman declared, it is doubtful if local sections of the highway can be opened, until such time as the sections to Route 128 are finished. It was pointed out that traffic would not move very speedily if it piled up into narrower town roads, after moving swiftly over short sections of Route 93. Any more to open short sections would be thoroughly discussed with local police departments before action was taken, to be certain that proper controls could be provided.

WAITS FOR HIS TURN — 15-year-old James A. Doyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Doyle of Reservation rd., is anxious to try out his dad's sail plane and has already had some instruction

JIM DOYLE BUILDS OWN SAIL PLANES

Brothers in Elmira, N. Y. That firm specializes in the manufacture of sail planes and has steadily improved the design over the years since the end of World War II.

The plane took close to 500 work hours — mostly fitting parts and riveting.

But before the cover of cotton aircraft fabric was put on, the craft was carefully inspected by a federal inspector, to be certain that it conformed with the specifications provided by the company and met all the requirements imposed by the government.

Then, after covering, the sail plane was again inspected by the government man — as an additional check to be certain that all requirements had been met.

The same procedure will be followed this time, Doyle explained.

Rigid Inspections

His current project, however, isn't quite as extensive as the first plane. The two-seater was purchased partly constructed.

Doyle has the body of the plane hanging in his Northeast Scale Model's manufacturing plant in Ballardvale. Of tubular steel construction, the body is about 24 feet long. The wings were carted on Doyle's trailer from Elmira. They, too, are partly constructed, so that the work time is less than required in building a plane from the original kit. The finished plane will have a wing span of 44 feet, and, before it takes to the air, will have the thorough inspection required by the government. It will be fully licensed by the federal authorities, Doyle explained.

Build In Your Workshop

Actually, this do-it-yourself project is relatively simple, according to Doyle.

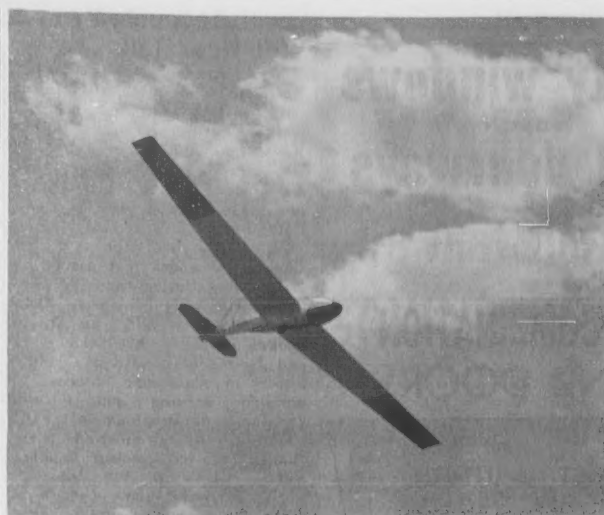

He said the ordinary compliment of home workshop tools, plus riveting equipment, would see a man through the job in good shape. And full instructions that accompany the kits, or the partly constructed models, can be followed easily. Right now, another Andoverite, Bob Salvo of Holt rd., is building one. And others in the community are beginning to show some interest in soaring as a sport.

One of the most avid enthusiasts is Jim's brother, John.

Both men are accomplished aviators and both soared in Jim's one-seater. John lends a hand with the construction, and both men man the tow plane that takes the sail plane into the air.

When the two-seater is completed, Jim plans to fly it out of the Lawrence airport and will make it possible for residents of the area to take their first sail plane trips.

As Jim pointed out, the progress of soaring in the United States has depended mostly on two or three men starting the sport and interesting others in it.

And although this has been effective, Doyle added that Russia leads the world in the number of sailing planes and even Switzerland outstrips the United States, having 40 times as many planes per person as does this country. "We're at the tail end of the list", he commented, "as far as general interest and activity in the sport are concerned".

28-Year Interest

Jim's interest in soaring started back in 1931 when he read a National Geographic article "Wings on the Wind". "But it's only the past three to five years that it has been practical for the average person to use one", Doyle continued. As soon as he felt that the design work had progressed far enough, the local resident began preparing to fly his own sail plane. One of the first steps, of course, was to take enough instruction to qualify — and this he did at Elmira. Doyle now has a full instructor's license in the sail planes.

To Jim Doyle, soaring is a thrilling sport — but not in the sense of tremendous speeds. Rather, Jim likes it because one's wits and knowledge must be utilized fully, taking advantage of the forces of nature, in order to get the best flight.

Because soaring is done, of course, in a plane without power, the length of any flight depends back to the landing strip and putting the plane down — so actually the pilot has about 10 minutes to find a thermal which will give him added altitude, so that the flight can be prolonged.

"The utilization of all natural conditions is what makes good soaring", Doyle enthused. He pointed out that on his first flight, he stayed aloft 45 minutes, and has since been airborne for well

BEAUTIFUL LAWN...

You can have beautiful, deep green, luxuriant lawns like this. Fertilize with MILORGANITE.

WAY

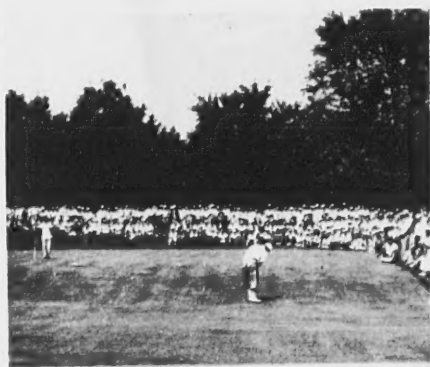

Lawns fertilized with Milorganite are distinctive. Their deep green color is most attractive. The grass grows continuously and at a uniform rate. The turf resists drought and withstands pest infestations. Milorganized lawns actually require less sprinkling and will stay green when other lawns wither and turn brown.

Unlike chemical fertilizers, the effects of MILORGANITE are cumulative. The grass gets better and better, year after year.

For more than a quarter of a century golf courses everywhere have used MILORGANITE fertilizer. Try their prescription. They know from experience that MILORGANITE feeding is the best way to produce a pleasing, luxuriant turf.

Packed in 80 lb. siftproof bags with full directions for use printed right on the bag.

The finest fairways and greens of leading golf clubs everywhere are fertilized with MILORGANITE.

Use MILORGANITE before seeding. Apply 4 to 5 lbs. per 100 square feet. It gives young grass a quicker start and assures a fast, uniform turf cover. Mix the seed with MILORGANITE to save one operation and insure uniform distribution of seed.

Fertilize the established lawn with MILORGANITE regularly, both spring and fall. The pleasing green color, the increased turf density and the reduction in weeds will amaze you.

Salaries Go Up Again

Of considerable interest to all taxpayers in the community is the bill, recently signed into law, that establishes a $4,000 minimum salary for school teachers in the state.

This automatically goes into effect one year from now, in September, 1960.

Thus, the school salary budget will certainly be increased to meet this state-imposed minimum. And it appears logical to believe that the remainder of the salary schedule, which starts at $3,800 and extends to $5,600, will have to undergo revision as a result. Even before this new law was approved, we had heard comments in School Committee meetings that the salary schedule does not now seem to be as attractive to teachers as it first appeared. This results, it is understood, from the general upward revisions in most communities — resulting in a loss of competitive position.

When we're thinking about next year's budgets, then, we should be considering the probability that salary items will be boosted to a considerable extent, in order to meet state requirements and to improve the competitive position in comparison with other school systems.

State Ignored McKenney Circle

It was disheartening to learn early this week that state engineers, way last spring, apparently failed to see the necessity of providing an access for McKenney cir. residents into the town, without going through Lawrence.

A resident of the area told the Selectmen Monday that he had obtained the promise of the state's chief engineer to take this matter into consideration when the plans for Route 110 were being drawn. The failure of the state to provide the access in some form would indicate that the engineers didn't care much about the local problem.

As it stands, plans now before the federal bureau of roads establish an interchange at No. Main st., and indicate that McKenney cir. residents will have to drive into Lawrence to get to Andover eventually. Their children, attending Shawsheen School, will have to walk via Lawrence, and probably proceed through the highly dangerous traffic area at the interchange.

All these facts were presented to the state last March, but there seems to have been no consideration given them — and they seem like mighty good arguments. The request of the state now is to consider a road connecting the Circle with Juliette st., which then could take the residents to Corbett st. and out to Andover.

It's to be hoped that the state design engineers seriously and favorably consider this, for the town and the residents will suffer if some access provisions are not made in the area.

Let's Get The Study Underway

We're all in favor of the proposed feasibility studies concerning additional industrial areas, changes in requirements for set-backs and lot sizes, and the compatibility of commercial and industrial developments.

These were suggested by the Development and Industrial Commission as a project that might be undertaken by the Planning Board in the near future. They are studies only — to be accepted or rejected after thorough consideration.

This town, we all agree, needs reasonable industrial expansion — it's our job now to determine how best it can be obtained. That's why the proposed studies are important, for there now may be reasons for changes in zoning and requirements that did not appear meritorious a few years ago when strip zoning along Route 93 was first considered.

It is to be hoped that the studies will commence with all possible speed, so that the results can be considered well ahead of the annual town meeting when special articles might be offered for the voters' decision.

Haartz Suggests Lawrence Take Over McKenney Cir.

To the Editor of the Townsman:

"Every costly urban renewal project is sound testimony that much growth would have been better stopped in its track than allowed to take its course. Accordingly, we should consider making the most of the possibilities for limiting certain growth which appears to be inherent in the proposed new layout for Route 110, through the westerly and northern parts of Andover."

"Dead-ending High Plain rd., thus retarding the development of much land in a residential area which, by past experience, shall prove to be costly to the entire town, seems to have more merit than the protest that such a dead-ending is undesirable."

"The Townsman reports that the new highway will take up to a 700 foot right of way. Here again it would seem wise to consider capitalizing on this aspect of the roadway by requesting that the state take a 1200 foot wide right of way for the road throughout the town. (It can be pointed out that money saved on bridges should be used to purchase more right of way.)"

"Such a wide strip would bestow upon Andover a green belt which would constantly increase in value for years to come by reducing the amount of land available for capitalization by private entities at the expense of the town's ability to service such growth. Certainly any town that is threatened by the high costs of urbanization has much reason for rejoicing when presented with an opportunity to acquire the vast and enduring advantages that come from being bisected by a green belt that is also used in part as a highway."

"It has long been a practice to determine political subdivisions by such barriers to travel as lakes, rivers, high ground, etc. Now we can consider using the new limited access highways for that purpose. Accordingly, with respect to McKenney cir., the town manager might make a study to determine what income to the town is produced by the section the new highway shall cut off and the probable costs of servicing it after the highway is built. Then, have been inserted in the warrant, but major attention is focused on the zoning."

In the primaries yesterday, Andover voters endorsed the candidacies of Curley and Bacon, following the pattern set around the state.

The Reading road was blocked by 15 wandering cows Wednesday night, when Frank Donovan's herd broke out of their pasture. Police officers were called and quickly rounded up the bovines.

A street fair will be held at the West Parish Church this afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Women's Union.

Abbot Academy opened its doors Tuesday and Wednesday of this week for the 106th year.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Ryder of Ballardvale celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last Saturday. Many relatives and friends greeted the well-known applying the prudence long used successfully by business managed entities, it might be indicated that the City of Lawrence should be asked to consider taking over that section. Any people who wish to remain citizens of Andover might be offered some kind of tax rebate, for say, three years, should they relocate elsewhere in Andover.

"So far, it appears that new Route 110, as explained by the state's engineers, has many unexpected advantages for Andover in meeting its expensive problem of keeping private entities from exploiting its resources."

Karl Haartz

What Our Readers Say—

To the Editor of the Townsman:

"What is happening to 'Our Town'? Most of us have bought or built our homes in Andover through choice. Throughout the whole United States we have enjoyed the reputation of being a lovely, quiet New England college town — a most desirable place to live and bring up our children."

"Now there's talk of putting a huge bowling alley and skating rink on our beautiful tree lined Main street. This project will have to take in at least $700 a day to operate. Naturally, we cannot support this, so it will have to draw from the neighboring crowded cities. We do not have an alarming juvenile delinquency problem in 'Our Town'. If the promoters of this project feel as strongly as has been written on this subject and desire to do something constructive, well and good, but not on the main street of 'Our Town'."

"Out of towners who drive through 'Our Town' know nothing of the Hidden Roads, Argilla Roads or Strawberry Hills — they just see our Main Street. We all say with great pride we live in Andover — the home of Phillips and Abbot Academies. Do we want to be known as the home of the Great Bowladrome?"

Punchard High's football team will face its toughest opponent of the season Saturday in the opening game. Concord will roar into town, after three undefeated seasons. The Blue Devils lost to the powerhouse last year, 6-0.

Civil War Group

The Andover Civil War Roundtable will open its fall meetings on Monday evening, Sept. 21, at 7:45 o'clock, in the Memorial Hall Library. Those who have attended in the past are asked to note that this year the meetings will open at 7:45 p.m. instead of 7:30 as formerly.

Any person interested in the Civil War is invited to attend the opening meeting. Once a month, on the third Monday, the group has been meeting at the library since its formation. Plans are being made for an unusually interesting program.

Great Books

Newcomers are invited to include the Great Books Discussion Group in their fall plans if they wish to spend pleasant evenings, twice a month, in good company. The group welcomes new members at any time.

Tomorrow The Moon

Interest in science and the atomic age always runs high in libraries these days, and exciting new subject headings have appeared in the card catalogs recently, such as "Space Flight", "Artificial Satellites", "Interplanetary Voyages", "Rockets And Guided Missiles" — words unheard of not too many years ago.

Readers are enjoying Martin Caidin's "Spaceport, U.S.A." which tells the story of the Air Force missile test center at Cape Canaveral, in Florida. The book is illustrated with hundreds of photographs and drawings, and describes in detail the development of this important testing ground, its operation, personnel, and the exciting events that have taken place there.

playground Supervisor James Doherty talked with the Selectmen Monday about using the precast room in the old school building. They received permission, if proper supervision can be maintained.

Ground was broken Friday morning for the $594,546 veterans housing project off Morton st. State and local officials took part in the brief ceremony.

Three applicants for the position of principal in the Junior High School were interviewed Tuesday night by the School Committee. The opening occurred when Milton H. Nelson accepted the superintendent's job in Nahant.

columns of warm air rising from the ground — as being stepping stones upon which a pilot depends. "You spiral up in one", he continued, "then glide down seeking another". Making full use of the thermals is the way a sail plane can carry its pilot from one specific destination to another — say from Lawrence to the beaches and back.

Even though the sail plane has no power of its own, then, Doyle said nearly every flight originates and ends at the same place. Few planes are landed, through necessity, in some other location. But if this happens, it's a simple matter to land the plane almost "on a dime", then call for someone to come with a trailer to cart the plane back home.

Land On A Dime

Commenting further on the ability to land, Doyle said a pilot "has tremendous control over where he lands". The use of "spoilers" — a lift on the wing that literally takes the "lift" out of it — controls the rate of descent. Control of this, plus the knowledge that a sail plane has 25 feet of gliding for every foot of altitude, the pilot can choose the spot he wishes to land, then put the plane on the ground.

Strangely enough, the sail planes have only one wheel, plus a "skid" — both located forward. The plane can roll on the wheel, or with the nose down, can "skid" along to a halt.

Despite the differences, Doyle feels that soaring is as safe as flying powered planes, and, he mentioned, a sail plane can perform any maneuver that a power plane can do — but it must lose altitude while doing it, unlike the powered craft.

The sail plane normally moves about 45-50 miles an hour in flight, and can dive at speeds up to 105 miles an hour. The tone of the wind, an one instrument in the cockpit, keeps the pilot informed as to speed and rate of descent or climb.

Built-In Safety

Specific safety devices have been built into the sail planes, Doyle explained. A pilot wears a shoulder harness that keeps him from bashing his head on the panel if the plane should stop abruptly on landing. And, he said, the steel tube construction itself protects the pilot from anything more than "a good shaking up" if an accident occurs on landing.

The nylon tow lines — currently about 250 feet long, can be detached by either the tow plane or the pilot of the sail plane. This, plus automatic release of broken ends of the line if they get wrapped around anything, is one great improvement over soaring in other years.

Doyle said a former arrangement didn't allow automatic release — a fact that cost the lives of some pilots, particularly in Great Britain. Sometimes, Jim recalled, a pilot will forget to release the broken end of a tow line. And if this wraps itself around some wires, or a tree limb, as the plane is landing, it must either automatically come free of the plane or cause an accident. Before the newer device for automatic release, several pilots found themselves snagged on wires and other things, with the obvious result — a bad accident. All in all, Doyle stated, "gliders used to be dangerous", but now they're not.

Soaring, Anyone?

Bearing this in mind, Doyle wants to entice a lot more people in soaring, partly through use of his two-seater next spring.

When people see lots of fluffy, cumulus clouds — the sign of a good soaring day — it's his hope they'll want to join him in "just meandering around" in the sky.

South PTA Group Maps Year's Plans

Let's go 1st class on concrete!

EVERYBODY SAVES MONEY when roads are paved with low-maintenance, modern concrete!

When you see a new concrete road—congratulate yourself. You'll get big savings on upkeep. Concrete costs less to take care of than asphalt. It saves you as much as 60 cents on every maintenance dollar. Because it's rigid, not flexible, concrete can be built to match tomorrow's heavier traffic...built precisely to the load it must carry. And concrete gets stronger with age—just the opposite of other materials. Heat, freezing, de-icers and spring thaws can't hurt modern concrete. Expect it to last 50 years and more!

Now you know some of the reasons why concrete's first choice for first class highways everywhere. You can get all the facts by writing for a free new booklet on concrete highways.

"Man In Space", edited by These and many other titles are shown in the current display at the Memorial Hall Library, arranged to draw interest to a program to be broadcast over ABC-TV

Courses For Adults

Interest in adult education courses always runs high at this particular season, when young people are returning to the classroom, and parents discover that they might well be left behind in the race for new knowledge on old subjects. Home study courses, group classes in town or in nearby communities, discussion and group study programs conducted in the library, adult programs offered at Phillips Academy all have much to offer the person who wishes to continue learning.

Copies of programs for study groups are available at the Memorial Hall Library. The Andover Evening Study Program For Adults, the fall "Learn While You Earn" bulletin of the Department of Education's state university extension classes, the Boston Center For Adult Education bulletin and home study programs of the University Of Chicago for this fall and winter are all on hand at the library.

The Andover Evening Practical Arts classes to be held in the local schools have been posted in the foyer of the library. Registration was held Sept. 14 at the Junior High School for classes in tailoring, sewing, rug braiding and furniture.

Early in October the library will extend to its readers an invitation to join the Great Books Discussion Group, which meets every other Tuesday during the the fall and winter for those who enjoy good reading, good companionship and good talk.

The Andover Civil War Roundtable will soon be opening its fall program. This group meets every third Monday and is open to any person seriously interested in the course of the Civil War.

RADIO SPEAKER

Sept. 20, the Rev. J. Allyn
Bradford will speak on "Morning Devotions" for the Lawrence Council of Churches, which is heard on a Lawrence radio station at 6:50 a.m. Sunday.

A tract of land with the buildings thereon in said Andover as subdivided by J.P. Stevens & Co., Inc. dated October, 1955 recorded in Essex North District Registry of Deeds as plan no. 3358 and bounded as follows: Easterly by Railroad Street 162.67'; Northerly by lot no. 2 on said plan and other land of J.P. "Man In Space", edited by Kenneth Gantz, tells of research and plans of U.S. Air Force for selecting and training spacecraft crews. Description of various missiles can be found in "Illustrated Guide To U. S. Missiles and Rockets" by Stanley Ulanoff.

Other books on related subjects are Stine's "Rocket Power and Space Flight", Kemp's "What Makes Guided Missiles Tick", Caiden's "Vanguard", Branley's "Experiments In The Principles of Space Travel", Witkin's "Challenge Of The Sputniks", Levitt's "Space Traveler's Guide To Mars", "Around The World In 90 Minutes", by Woodbury, and "Earth Satellites" by Moore.

These and many other titles are shown in the current display at the Memorial Hall Library, arranged to draw interest to a program to be broadcast over ABC-TV on September 25, "Tomorrow The Moon". This is one of the "Walt Disney Presents" programs.

All material displayed is ready for immediate circulation.

Courses For Adults

Interest in adult education courses always runs high at this particular season, when young people are returning to the classroom, and parents discover that they might well be left behind in the race for new knowledge on old subjects. Home study courses, group classes in town or in nearby communities, discussion and group study programs conducted in the library, adult programs offered at Phillips Academy all have much to offer the person who wishes to continue learning.

Copies of programs for study groups are available at the Memorial Hall Library. The Andover Evening Study Program For Adults, the fall "Learn While You Earn" bulletin of the Department of Education's state university extension classes, the Boston Center For Adult Education bulletin and home study programs of the University Of Chicago for this fall and winter are all on hand at the library.

The Andover Evening Practical Arts classes to be held in the local schools have been posted in the foyer of the library. Registration was held Sept. 14 at the Junior High School for classes in tailoring, sewing, rug braiding and furniture.

Early in October the library will extend to its readers an invitation to join the Great Books Discussion Group, which meets every other Tuesday during the fall and winter for those who enjoy good reading, good companionship and good talk.

The Andover Civil War Roundtable will soon be opening its fall program. This group meets every third Monday and is open to any person seriously interested in the course of the Civil War.

RADIO SPEAKER

Sept. 20, the Rev. J. Allyn Bradford will speak on "Morning Devotions" for the Lawrence Council of Churches, which is heard on a Lawrence radio station at 6:50 a.m. Sunday.

Adult Evening Study Program Scheduled At Phillips In October

The Andover Evening Study Program for Adults, of Phillips Academy, will open for its 23 annual session Oct. 5. The program is conducted as a service to the men and women of the community by the faculty of Phillips Academy, who donate their time without compensation. All proceeds beyond the costs of operation are donated to institutions within the community which further the cause of education. To date, over $5,000 has been contributed to such institutions.

Richard S. Pieters, director of the Program, in commenting on its purpose, indicated that it was hoped that through the courses offered people within the Andover community will rediscover old intellectual interests, gain new ones and to increase their capacities to enjoy fine things and prepare themselves better to meet their responsibilities as citizens. Mr. Pieters added that people whose formal education had been limited are especially welcome.

The courses are conducted in buildings at Phillips Academy and run for a duration of eight weeks, each course meeting once a week. Tuition charges include a registration fee and an additional fee for each course taken. After Sept. 23, the registration fee will be slightly higher. The late registration penalty is not designed to stop enrollment but is rather urged to facilitate administrative details, Mr. Pieters stated.

The courses offered are as follows at the times indicated: The Iliad in Translation, given by Frederick Peterson, will meet Wednesdays at 7:30. Effective Speaking, given by Stephen Whitney and Roger Higgins, will meet Wednesdays at 7:30. Satire, given by Thomas J. Regan, will meet Tuesdays at 7:30. Russian Conversation, given by Robert Lane, will meet Tuesdays at 7:30. Visual Aids for Chemistry Teaching, given by Elbert C. Weaver, will meet Wednesdays at 9:40. Why

Read Novels?, given by Harford W. H. Powell, will meet Mondays at 7:30. Religious Insights and Contemporary Drama, given by A. G. Baldwin and F. A. Pease, will meet Mondays at 8:40.

Coastal Piloting, given by Sherman Drake, will meet on Tuesdays at 7:30. Modern Math for Math Teachers, given by Edmond E. Hammond Jr. and Richard S. Pieters, will meet on Thursdays at 7:30. Art Today, given by Gordon G. Bensley, will meet on Thursdays at 7:30. Learning To Know Antiques, given by Roland B. Hammond, will meet on Wednesdays at 7:30. Life Insurance, Theory and Practice, given by Richard Marshall, will meet on Mondays at 8:40. The Philosophy of Thomas Aquinas, given by Brendan J. Farrington, will meet on Tuesdays at 7:30. The Poetry of William Butler Yeats, given by Simeon Hyde Jr., will meet on Tuesdays at 7:30. Sights and Sounds, given by the Art and Music Departments, will meet on Thursdays at 8:40. Symposium on Educational Problems, given by Albert K. Roehrig, will meet on Thursdays at 8:40. Aural French, given by members of the French Department, will meet on Mondays 1. 7:30-8:30; 2. 8:40-9:40. An Introduction to the Far East, given by Schuyler Royce, will meet on Tuesdays at 8:40.

Enrollment may be made by means of the registration blanks found in the back of the Outline of Courses for the Program. Copies of this booklet may be had by writing to the Andover Evening Study Program, Phillips Academy. For convenience, information may also be had at the Memorial Hall Library.
